Demands previously referred to the finance committee were reported favorably and warrants ordered drawn. Report of city recorder for April was received and filed.

Report of building inspector for April, 1909, accompanied by a check for $98.00 for fees, was received and filed.

Report of street superintendent on curb rebate Orange Grove avenue, received and referred to the finance committee. Requests of John R. Ott for 30 days' extension of time for the completion of the improvement of Orange street, First to Fourth streets, granted.

Clerk was instructed to draw up demand in the sum of ten dollars to pay for current year's membership fee in the League of California Municipalities. Trustee Blackburn moved that the city engineer be instructed to make an estimate of the cost of the acquiring and construction of electric light works for the city, which was adopted.

In regard to this matter the city engineer submitted a report estimating the cost of such improvement at $60,000. The estimate was approved and adopted and resolution as published in another column was thereupon adopted.

COMPLETION OF THE FILGER BLOCK.

This fine two-story pressed brick structure on Fourth street near Glendale avenue, is now completed and tenanted execpt as to the office rooms in the front part of the upper story, of which there are five, well lighted and admirably arranged for comfort and convenience. No expense has been spared to make the building first class in every particular and it is a structure which would be creditable to a much larger city than Glendale. The particular feature of the structure is the well-arranged auditorium on the upper floor which is fitted up with a stage, drop curtain, footlights, dressing room, etc., all of which may be fairly considered as constituting Glendale's first opera house. Another feature of this auditorium is the beautifully frescoed dome, which artistic work was done by Mr. Jacob Fink, a fresco and scene painter who has recently come to Glendale to make his home among us. An elaborate system of electric lighting promises to furnish most pleasing effects. A rear outside stairway furnishes egress from the hall back of the stage. Among other conveniences for the accommodation of patrons the hall has a small but well equipped kitchen, which will no doubt be appreciated particularly by the ladies as enabling them to perform satisfactorily the part of hostesses upon those numerous occasions when it becomes advisable if not necessary to cater to the hankerings of the inner man. The hall will seat four hundred and is equipped at present with three hundred opera house chairs of most approved pattern. Mr. Filger and the people of Glendale are certainly to be congratulated upon this most recent addition to our business structures.

AT ST. MARK'S CHURCH.

On Sunday at 11 o'clock the ordinance of Holy Baptism will be administered to several children and the rector will preach a sermon on the subject of baptism and confirmation, and the duties of parents for the religious and moral training of their children. The Sunday school meets at 10 o'clock in the Parish Hall at Third and Jackson streets. On Sunday, May 16th, the bishop of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. J. H. Johnson, D. D., will administer confirmation. All persons are welcome to these services.

The rector requests the presence in church of parents with their children and especially urges parishioners whose children are not baptised to present them for baptism on Sunday morning. Inasmuch as the instruction relates to the important subjects of baptism and confirmation it is proposed also that all the Sunday School scholars be present.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

Frank Zerr, the druggist, is moving into his new store in the Hurtt block. Noble Brothers have moved into their new quarters in the Filger block.

OPENING OF THE FILGER OPERA HOUSE.

The new opera house in the Filger Block was thrown open to the public last evening. The initial entertainment was the concert given by the orchestra of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles, under the direction of Mr. E. B. Valentine. Every chair was taken and it is probable that a much larger number of tickets were sold than was represented by those present. The entertainment was under the auspices of the Board of Trade, the entire net receipts to be applied to the Pavilion Building fund. There was considerable delay in beginning, and it was 8:45 when the curtain went up and the overture began. The performance of the orchestra was excellent, the Minuet of Paderewski being particularly good. The unfortunate illness of Mr. Marple prevented the appearance of the Marple quartette, but Miss Fannie Marple sang two charming numbers instead, which were highly appreciated by the audience. Encores were barred, however, by time limitations.

Mr. Bonnell as a monologue artist proved irresistibly funny while his performance on the auto-harp and mouth organ was a musical treat. During an interval in the program Capt. James M. Wells was called upon and made a brief and appropriate speech, expressing the appreciation of the people of Glendale for the work of Mr. David Filger in providing Glendale with a fine business structure and an Opera House. Mr. F. H. Vesper, president of the Board of Trade, responded briefly to a call for a speech, and on behalf of that organization thanked the audience and the people for their support and appreciation.

EAGLE ROCK LINE SERVICE INCREASED.

The service on the Eagle Rock line of the Los Angeles railway will be increased by a schedule change which will become effective May 10.

Cars will be run every 30 minutes daily from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. After the latter hour there will be an hour schedule, as at present, the last car leaving Twelfth and Main streets at 11:30 p.m.

From the other terminus the last through car will leave Townsend avenue at 10:30 p. m. Cars which will leave Townsend at 6:30, 7:30 and 11 p. m. and 12:25 a. m. will run only to Twenty-eighth and Dayton, where passengers will be transferred to the Main street line.

On Sundays cars will run on a 30-minute schedule from 6 a. m. to 2:30 p. m., and on a 15-minute schedule from the latter hour until 6:30, when an hour schedule will be put on until 10:30, at which time the last car will leave Twelfth and Main.

On Sundays the last through car will leave Townsend avenue at 10:30 p. m.

The above is from the Los Angeles Express of Thursday. Manager Goode of the Glendale-Eagle Rock electric road informs us that the cars of his company will meet the Los Angeles Railway cars as per change noted above. This means a very much improved service by that route.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

The board of trade met last Monday evening in the city hall, Pres. Vesper in the chair. A number of matters in connection with the building of the pavilion on the corner of Fourth and Glendale avenue, came up and were discussed at considerable length. The advertising committee presented some "copy" for a publication which is being prepared for the occasion of the coming of the Elks to Los Angeles, and the same was approved. Mr. Anderson of the board of city trustees called the attention of the board to the advisability of attempting to secure a Carnegie library for Glendale, but no definite action was taken. Mr. Valentine reported progress in regard to the entertainment to be given Thursday night. The board adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we hereby tender to our fellow member, the president of the board of trustees of the city of Glendale, Mr. Thomas W. Watson, our heartfelt sympathy in his great affliction and instruct the secretary to spread this resolution upon the minutes."

A NEW ENTERPRISE.

Mr. James I. Anderson has opened up in the Filger block on Fourth street a complete up-to-date book and stationery store, which is well stocked with a supply of the best goods. He has bought out the stock of Mr. F. H. Guernsey in addition to a full new stock of supplies. Mr. Anderson will in connection with other business conduct a loan library, which, as we have examined the books he has on hand, will no doubt prove to be very popular. We haev never, indeed, seen a better collection of recent fiction anywhere, considering the limited number of volumes; as Mr. Anderson is a gentleman of excellent literary taste and will not handle "trash."

WANT TO CONDEMN.

The city of Glendale has brought an action against Thomas Price et al., setting forth that it is the desire of the municipality to open Adams street to a uniform width of sixty feet from the south line of First street to the southerly city boundary line. They are asked to set out their interests in the real estate to be appropriated and condemned for that purpose.—Times.

They will probably be absent two months or more.

We are in receipt of a note from that confirmed optimist, Albert Dow, of Kenneth Ranch, who writes from Ocean Park where he has gone to spend a few weeks, ordering an extra copy of the NEWS to be sent to him at that address and saying things pleasant about us. All of which we appreciate and wish the writer a generous proportion of all the good that there is in life.

IS IT ANOTHER CASA VERDUGO—OR WHAT?

This is the question that is agitating the residents of the neighborhood of Central avenue adjoining the Glendale city limits, in regard to the new one-story structure that is about completed on Central avenue, corner of Patterson. It is a neat well-lighted building into which furniture is now being put by Messrs. Rhodes & Callender. The broad verandah on three sides is suggestive of creature comfort on a warm and—thirsty—day and the new range with which the kitchen is supplied, of the hot bottle for the cold bird. And there is a rumor in the air to the effect that a restaurant liquor license has been applied for. All of which is sufficient to justify the fears of the residents of the community that Casa Verdugo is no longer to have a monopoly of the business of supplying liquid refreshments to the thirsty denizen as well as the passer-by. The serious part of the matter is however that in deeds generally given to property in that subdivision there has been a restrictive clause prohibiting saloons, and purchasers naturally expected that they would be remote from anything of that sort. Should it prove true that a license for the sale of liquor, either with or without meals, has been or will be applied for, there will be a pretty stiff fight put up against it by the residents of the neighborhood.

GUESTS OF NOTE.

Final arrangements are being completed by the committee, Mrs. R. A. Blackburn, chairman of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, for Reciprocity Day exercises, which will occur on Tuesday, May 11th, at 2 o'clock at Filger opera house, the object of the occasion being the helpful interchange of ideas along various lines of club work. Twenty clubs, including all federated clubs of this vicinity are expected to send representatives. Among some of the distinguished guests invited are Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, vice-president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs of the United States; Mrs. R. J. Waters, president of the District Federation; Margaret Collier Graham, Florence Collins Porter, Madam Severance, Olive Thorne Miller, Mrs. Brady, state chairman reciprocity; Mrs. Du Puy, district chairman reciprocity, and others. Manager Goode has generously offered the Tuesday Afternoon Club and guests the hospitality of the Glendale and Eagle dock road for the day.

The program in preparation promises to be of peculiar interest to all club workers and the poppy badges of Glendale's club women are expected to be much in evidence upon this occasion.

THE WARREN SYSTEM COMING TO GLENDALE.

"The Warren System" of Mandolin and Guitar Schools so successful throughout Southern California for the past seven years will establish a school in this city on Thursday next, the 13th. Warren, for fifteen years director of the well-known Throop Institute Mandolin and Guitar club of Pasadena, is the manager of this school and his instruction used. Mr. Warren is also now instructor of the Y. M. C. A. club of Pasadena and the Crown City Mandolin and Guitar club.

For a limited time a unique idea of advertising will be used to induce pupils to join the classes. A new "Rex Professional Mandolin or Guitar"—case and instruction book—will be given FREE to the first pupils signing for the course of lessons. Glendale repesentative can be found by calling Phone Glendale 93, or at 420 Glendale avenue.

GLENDALE, CAL., MAY 8, 1909

Monrovia voted $100,000 bonds last Monday for a sewer system.

Let us fervently hope that with the passing of Abdul Hamid, the "Sick Man of Europe" is at last dead!

Dr. E. C. Moore, superintendent of city schools in Los Angeles, has taken steps to "abolish ostentatious ceremonies" on commencement (which ought to be "finishing") day. The graduating exercises will consist merely in music, an address to the graduates and the presentation of diplomas.

We congratulate our contemporary the Monrovia Messenger upon its change of form and the discarding of the "patent inside." It is now what every weekly paper should be, if its local patronage warrants it, a home printed sheet. The Messenger now presents a prosperous appearance and its advertising display indicates a wide awake community for a constituency.

The "Sleeping Sickness," caused by the bite of the tsetse fly, has a record of 200,000 deaths in six years in Uganda, Africa, and threatens to depopulate the country. No cure for it has yet been discovered, but it is fortunately confined to a restricted area of country, although Prof. Koch, who spent a year and a half on an island in Lake Victoria, Nyganza, investigating it, regards it as a great peril to all of East Africa.

The Pacific Electric Railway company may be above criticism, but at the same time we rise to remark that the people who patronize its cars have some rights, legal and otherwise, which it would be well to respect. The practice which that company indulges in occasionally of dropping out altogether a car on the evening schedule as was done one evening last week and has been done on previous occasions, is rather rank and risky railroading. The public has a right to expect and depend upon cars leaving according to schedule time unless interfered with by act of Providence, and we have no reason to believe that Providence is responsible for the failure to send out a car on the Glendale line simply because there was something "unusual" going on at San Pedro!

THE COURT'S DEFENSE.

Criticism of court decisions by people who know nothing about law and have no proper appreciation of the underlying principles upon which the legal structure rests, built up as it has been throughout the centuries by the best minds of the times contributing to it, are so frequently heard and so rarely replied to that the following extract from a recent speech by Judge Van Fleet of the California Supreme Court, is well worth considering. After alluding to the danger of rendering judgment on "general principles" and the fact that under the common law as well as under the statutes, man shall not be compelled to furnish evidence against himself, Judge Van Fleet says:

"The function of the court is to apply the law, not to make it; to enforce it rather than break it. The wisdom of the ages has demonstrated the necessity of surrounding the administration of justice with certain fixed rules and limitations, to avoid the personal equation of the mere will or desire of the individual—which always tends to wrong and oppression. These rules are prescribed for the protection of society itself; and, not infrequently serve to protect it against itself. They are for the benefit of every man who comes befor the court—the guilty and the innocent alike; for it is only by their impartial application that the question of guilt or innocence may be safely reached in any case, and the defendant justly said to have had a fair trial. These rules are not, therefore, to be ignored, for, if they may be disregarded today for a good end, they may be as readily disregarded tomorrow for a bad one. There is but one course open to a court, and that to apply the prescribed rules of law undeviatingly as it finds them; and the judge who, in the supposed interest of justice in a particular case, undertakes to set them at naught abdicates his sworn judicial function and becomes the abettor of the mob—the only tribunal that may presume to administer its justice untrammeled by the restraint of law."

CRITICISM BY MATHEMATICAL FORMULA.

The Los Angeles Times of recent date has an interesting critical paper on the question "Is Poetry Dying Out?" and answers the query, perhaps, as satisfactorily as is possible. The result is attained by a simple mathematical process. Four prominent magazines having been selected for the first four months of the present year, it is discovered that one sixty-sixth of the literary matter they contain, is in verse. Thus the question of proportion is disposed of. It might be carried much further, however. The four named magazines being typical of their kind, it may be fairly assumed that the average reader wants about one sixty-sixth of his reading matter to be in verse. Or it might be inferred that one reader out of sixty-six reads poetry. These four magazines in the four months published sixty-seven poems, and the conclusion reached by the critic in regard to them is that "Only four had any distinct merit, twenty-two barely escaped being poor and forty-two were not poetry at all."

This is pretty severe on the magazine poets, but perhaps they deserve it. The writer we quote is of the opinion that good poetry is written today but that it does not appear in the magazines. It seems to us that there is something wrong about this conclusion. If good poetry is being written and does not appear in the magazines, we fear that the poets are guilty of hiding their divine light under the Biblical bushel. Where else shall we look for good poetry if not in the best class of the magazines?

Good poets do not usually write for a limited few—they naturally desire to attract the attention of the largest possible audience. It has never been the custom for our great poets to slight the magazines nor to shrink from popularity. The best poems of the great makers of verse who cast upon the latter half of the last century such undying luster, appeared first in the magazines, and we do not believe, if there are any great poets at the present time, that they disdain to utilize this medium of communicating their songs to the world. The article quoted has this conclusion: "The people read and appreciate good poetry today. Good poetry is written today—but American magazines are not publishing it."

We are inclined to believe that the magazines do publish the best poetry that is being written. The serious trouble is that the great poets seem to have died off with the passing of Swinburne the other day. The "Times" article mentions the names of a dozen writers who produce "good, even great poetry." Here is the startling list: French, Braithwaite, Santayana, Alfred Noyes, John G. Nichardt, Phillips, William Vaughn, Moody, Ridgaly Torrence, William Lawrence Knowles and Ludwig Lewisohn. Reading over the list we are reminded of the exclamation which Mark Twain attributes to Artemus Ward when bored by a stranger, on a railway train, "Great Scott, Mister, you know more strangers than any man I ever met."

THE PARK QUESTION AGAIN.

We regret that progress is not being made in regard to securing a public park or parks for Glendale. The probability is that only a small proportion of our people realize the rapidity of the city's growth, or interest in the subject would be much more general and serious. The trouble we think is due to the fact that many of our citizens have come to California so recently that it is difficult, in some cases impossible, for them to realize the tremendous transformation which is taking place around them; they do not comprehend the movement in which they themselves are playing a prominent part, which is making of Southern California a very world center. They have not the evidence of their own senses reaching over a period of years to refer to and confirm the evidence of others whose stories too often appeal to them as being largely colored by an exuberant fancy. They need to be told more than once a few of the indisputable facts that have passed into the history of the last twenty-five years, and judging the future by that past they should be able to believe that not only Glendale but every growing town of Southern California needs to be up and vigorously doing for that brilliant future that is rapidly pressing home upon us. As one of these useful reminders, we call to their attention the facts in the growth of Los Angeles which have been developed by the United States census. The population of that city in 1880 was in round numbers, 11,000; in 1890, 44,000; in 1900, 102,000, and next year's count will doubtless show a population of 300,000. And the increase in the smaller cities of the county has been in similar proportion. Glendale in 1900 had a population of about 500; in 1910 it will be 3,000, showing it to have been multiplied by six in a decade. There is every reason to believe that the percentage of increase in the next ten years will be greater than this, and ten years passes rapidly in this age of the world. There is much therefore that we should be doing for the future; and if posterity has to help pay for some of the things that we do, posterity will be an ingrate if it does not do so cheerfully. We need at least two small public parks; three would be better. There is only one practical way to secure them and that is by a bond issue. Let them consist of two or three acres each. Locate them near the railroad lines—one on or near Glendale avenue and the other on Brand boulevard or Central; the particular location to depend of course upon the terms that can be made with present owners. If three should be considered practicable of attainment, put the third near Verdugo road. The sites could be definitely selected and the price ascertained before the question is put to a vote, so that there need be no chance for any misunderstanding as to either. Property owners would probably be reasonable as to prices, for there would be competition among them when it came to offering sites. Parks are valuable assets, they add directly and immediately to the value of property near them and their possession to a young and growing city is a valuable advertisement of civic enterprise. We invite a discussion of this subject in our columns, not only by those favoring the proposition but by others as well.

AERO CLUB OF CALIFORNIA—OUR REPORTER TAKES IN THE SHOW.

As some of our Glendale people are directly interested along the line of aeronautics and more of them can well afford to be, we visited the exhibition of the Aero Club at Fiesta Park in Los Angeles last Saturday and discovered that there are more things in heaven and earth and in the air than we had dreamed of. The club has recently completed an extensive stadium at Fiesta Park and gave its first exhibition at the new grounds last Saturday and Sunday. Being in the nature of a first experiment the program was not as attractive to an outsider as it will doubtless be made in the future. The kite contest did not amount to much and some of the other features did not materialize; but there was plenty to interest the onlooker, however. First there was the big Ferris balloon "America," recently brought down on mule back from the mountains where it had been the cause of a three-days' sensation while the fate of Captain Mueller and its other passengers was still a mystery. The big air bag had been repaired, and being attached to earth by a fifteen hundred foot cable soared aloft for a limited distance over the city carrying three or four passengers at a time who expressed themselves as feeling well repaid for leaving terra firma for a half hour, although, owing to the unfavorable wind, one or two of the trips resulted in more or less wobbling of the basket which produced well simulated cases of "sea sickness." After the balloon, the next most interesting feature of Saturday afternoon show was the performance of Ed. S. Smith of Glendale with his "glider," a three decker arrangement of canvas on a light frame which being given an initial impetus is intended to glide through the air after the manner of the birds, but is not expected to attain to a prolonged flight. Usually these machines get the impetus by sliding down an incline, but Mr. Smith depended upon an automobile which started off at a high rate of speed pulling the glider after it. The operator stands on the ground grasping a center piece underneath the structure and is carried along by the machine. Once or twice Mr. Smith, who has the athletic proportions requisite for the start, was dumped unceremoniously into the lap of mother earth, but in the more successful trials was carried off his feet for some distance as the glider seemed for a moment or two to contemplate an invasion of the empyrean, but upon second sober thought came back to earth. A bunch of enthusiastic Polytechnic boys had a modification of the Wright model of gliding machine which after a few strenuous hours of effort they succeeded in getting to the top of a long incline and turned loose; the attraction of gravitation proved too much for it, however, for it promptly shot down to the ground seriously jarring some of its joints. No. 5 on the program was announced as the invention of Mr. E. G. Ford, of Glendale, to be ridden by F. L. Hetzel, but it did not materialize. Any one who takes an interest in the problems for the navigation of the air, a subject which is thrusting itself upon the attention of the world very persistently just now, can well afford to visit these exhibitions of the Aero Club. He will find pictures and models of all sorts of craft calculated to navigate the air and will encounter enthusiastic devotees of the science, some of whom have "wheels," but all of whom have ideas, who will take pleasure in explaining all about the machines in which they are interested, with all that enthusiasm which is the first requisite of success in the inventive genius.

MARRIED.

Mr. Platt M. Corbaley and Miss Grace Anderson, both of East Sixth street, were quietly married on Friday of last week at Riverside, returning the next day to the home of the bride's parents where they remained until Saturday evening when they left for Mexico where Mr. Corbaley has some business affairs to look after. They will probably remain about two months when it is expected that they will return to a Glendale home.

THE BLACK APHIS.

Some time ago the horticultural commissioners sent a man out here to examine the orchards and see if there existed any of the black aphis, a winged pest that has wrought havoc in many orchards in the northern part of the state. The inspector found the insect quite numerous in some orchards along Fifth street east of Adams and so reported. The result was that notice was served on property owners to proceed to take measures to eradicate the pest and an outfit working under the commissions directions was put to work. All the affected trees were fumigated by the application of cyanide fumes under a tent. Holes were also made about the roots of the trees and cyanide placed therein as the insect goes down into the ground about the roots, and is as harmful under ground as it is upon the branches. It is a black fly with a glistening black body in the adult; the female is supplied with wings and the pest spreads rapidly in the course of the prevailing winds, which in this locality is from southwest to northeast. Peach and apricot trees are particularly subject to its attacks and rapidly succumb if not relieved. The fumigator process is quite effectual as far as it goes, but owing to the fact that the insect goes down into the ground, it is still a matter of doubt whether the flies will not appear again after some little time.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Wednesday, May 5, the baseball team played a practice game with the Occidental Inelligibles on the home field. It was an interesting game throughout, neither side securing a score until about the fifth inning. The home team played steadily and presented the visitor with a shut-out. The final score stood, Glendale 6, Occidental Inelligibles 0. Stine made the hit which brought in the first score. Benson deserves mention for the very good work done as pitcher.

The next league game will be played with Downey this (Saturday) afternoon at the home field. A large attendance is desired. All come!

Miss Winifred Sadler, a former member of the High School, has returned after more than a year's absence. She is a splendid athlete and will be sure of an enthusiastic welcome on the basketball and tennis courts.

Miss McLean is mourning the loss of her cute little black and white collie dog with brown eyebrows. The finder will please return the disobedient puppy to the owner.

ENTERTAINED AT ARD E'EVIN.

About fourteen ladies identified with the Woman's Aid Society of First Presbyterian Church were entertained on Tuesday afternoon at "Ard E'evin," the beautiful foothill home of Mrs. Daniel Campbell, formerly the president of the society. The ladies enjoyed the carriage ride, the wonderful views and later, the very delectable luncheon served by the hospitable hostess. Incidentally, there was a smart business session when plans were made, at the suggestion of church trustees and elders, for a good old-fashioned church-family supper, no charge or invitations, after which a congregational discussion will be held. Miss Fielding is to be next hostess for the society at the home of Mrs. Sinclair, First street, when there will be a quilting bee, and, owing to the resignation of Mrs. Thos. Ogg from the presidency, an election will take place for a new president.

NEARING THE END.

The festive season enjoyed so thoroughly by the irrepressible Hoo-Dooes is nearing the end and suppressed excitement is hidden in the heart of each Hoo-Doo as to the outcome of the season's score which the Great High Score-Keeper keeps under lock and seal. For the winners are to be highly entertained in Los Angeles at the expense of less fortunate Hoo-Dooes. Friday night was very happily spent at the pretty Ninth street home of Prof. and Mrs. Alphonso Tower, who did everything in their power to keep things straight and have the evening one of profit to all concerned. For a few moments the favorite settin' hen of the hostess was in great danger, but the supply of delicious refreshments held out and was served with typical Hoo-Hoo coffee. One more conclave will close the season, when the scores will be given.

MR. EUGENE NOWLAND IN A NEW ROLE.

Mr. Eugene Nowland, the talented violinist of the Hunter-Nowland trio, is a remarkably versatile gentleman and we are not surprised to notice in a recent number of a Los Angeles paper that he is to take the star part in a production of "The Violin Maker of Cremona," to be given by the Gamut Club on the evening of May 13th at the Auditorium. Florence Stone and Harry Mestayer also appear in the cast. Mr. Nowland has also been chosen to act as Pacific Coast commissioner to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, of the American Music Society at Seattle. He will visit several cities en route and organize centers of this society. One day at the exposition will be given to American music and Mr. Nowland will have entire charge of the program on that occasion.

FAIR AT K. OF P. HALL.

The fair being given by the Church of the Holy Family, opened Thursday afternoon in K. of P. hall and will be continued this afternoon and evening. The object is a worthy one, that of raising money to build a rectory on the church property. In reference to the entertainment a recent number of THE TIDINGS presents a picture of Rev. James O'Neill, the rector, with a complimentary notice.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

May 9th, 1909.

Paul's First Missionary Journey—Antioch in Pisidia. Acts xiii:13-52.

Golden text—The word of the Lord was published throughout all the region. Acts xiii:49.

Verse 13—At what points had Paul and Barnabas touched, according to the last lesson?

What important events were narrated in the last lesson?

Look up your map and say where are Paphos, Perga, and Antioch in Pisidia.

Verse 14—Should a Christian always attend church on Sunday, if he has the opportunity, whether at home or abroad?

If a man does not act like a Christian when away from home, is he a real Christian when at home, no matter what his outward acts may be?

Verse 15.—Are not our present day churches too stiff and formal, compared with the services in this synagogue?

Should not our services be sufficiently elastic to call upon others beside the pastor, to take part in them?

Verse 16.—Were there many devout Jews and others, in those days, who feared God and were accepted of him, who had not embraced Christianity?

Should preachers and teachers in addressing non-Christian audiences, assume that there may be some of the number who really "fear God," notwithstanding that they may never have heard of Jesus? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 17-37—In addressing a hostile audience it is well for a speaker to commence with things which they believe in common, making them lead up to the main question; what matters did Paul refer to, in carrying out this wise rule?

What points in this address of Paul's would you say were the most striking?

Verses 38-39 — In what sense can God forgive sins through Jesus, that he could not through the law of Moses?

Granted a future life of rewards and punishments, what question can compare in importance with the forgiveness of sins?

Are men sane who neglect to have their sins forgiven, seeing they admit the grave dangers of delay?

Verses 40-41—What do unconverted sinners need to "beware of?"

Why do sinners not accept of the salvation offered to them by Jesus?

Verses 42-43—What is it a sign of, when men want to hear the gospel preached?

Is there always an affinity between spiritual people, notwithstanding differences of opinion?

Does it do us all good to be urged to be true to God?

Verses 44-45—Does the story of the cross still draw crowds as it did at Antioch?

When one preacher is jealous at the good another preacher is doing, what is that a sign of?

Is a truly good man ever jealous of the good others are doing?

Verses 46-49—Is God more partial to one nationality than he is to another?

Does God ordain all those to eternal life who will accept of Jesus?

Are gladness and joy always in the hearts of those who love and serve God?

Verses 50-52—When the bad persecute the good, which gets the real trouble?

Lesson for Sunday, May 16th, 1909.—Paul's First Missionary Journey—Iconium and Lystra. Acts xiv:1-28.

Why the Menu Was Changed.

The culinary department of an East Indian household, if the story of an American traveler who has recently returned from Calcutta is to be believed, is managed far differently from an American kitchen. "Here we employ an Ethiopian expert at so much a week," says the Philadelphia Record. "There a cook would disdain to place a weekly valuation on his services. His conditions involve a flat rate of so many shillings weekly for the furnishing and preparation of provisions. This system of putting the culinary department out to contract causes a penuriousness on the part of the chef which frequently is not for the best health and welfare of the household. Shortly before last Christmas the above named American tourist had ordered his cook to have steak for dinner. Broiled chicken was served instead. Pressed for his reasons for disregarding the command of the head of the household, the cook explained that the chicken had taken sick and if it had not been killed and served that day he was afraid he would have lost it."

Conscientious Bill.

"Bill had charge of the animal tent," said the old circus man, "and among his pets was a leopard, the only one we had with the show, and quite enough too. This leopard gave Bill more trouble than all the rest of the menagerie put together. It was certainly an ugly brute.

"Well, one day when we were showing in the Midlands I had come up to London to arrange about some advance business. I was eating my dinner in the hotel when a telegram was handed to me. It was from Bill and read: 'The leopard has escaped. Prowling about town. What shall I do?'

"That was just like Bill. He had to have explicit directions, even in an emergency like this. He didn't want to make a mistake.

"I immediately wired back to Bill, 'Shoot him on the spot.' I didn't think any more about it until a couple of hours later, when I received another telegram from conscientious, careful Bill, asking, 'Which spot?'"

Relative Hardness of Precious Stones.

The relative hardness of various stones is easily determined by testing the power of one stone to make scratches on another. If a diamond is rubbed with one of the points of a topaz, the topaz point is blunted and the mark which will be seen on the face of the diamond is only the dust of the topaz, which can be brushed off with the finger. But if the topaz is rubbed against the diamond the latter is unaltered and the surface of the former is marked with a scratch which can be removed only by further polishing down. It is on the basis of this process of comparison that a scale of comparative hardness has been formed represented by ten substances, of which diamond is the highest and graphite the lowest in the scale. It is a curious fact that these two extremes of the scale, the brilliant and hard diamond and soft black graphite, are both chemically the same substance—pure carbon.—Jewelers' Circular.

Good Reason.

It was a kindly custom in a certain village for the wealthier inhabitants to make good the loss which a poorer villager might sustain through the death of a pig. Old Major Currie, however, had but recently returned from India; he therefore was astounded at receiving a visit from a laborer's wife.

"Lost a pig, eh?" he repeated gruffly. "Well, I haven't got it. I don't collect pigs!"

"Beggin' your pardon, sir," faltered the woman; "but, you see, the pig died."

"Well, d'ye want me to go to the funeral, send a wreath, or what, woman?" he fumed.

"Oh, no, sir; indeed, no!" was the reply. "But we're poor folks, sir, and we thought that, bein' the biggest pig in the neighborhood, you'd give us a little 'elp."—London Tit-Bits.

Refusing the Cure.

"Cultivate the acquaintance of women if you can," said the woman to the girl. "Surround yourself by women. They are certain protection against calumny. Women who have many women friends are never so awfully much talked about. It's policy."

"Is that what you have done?" asked the girl quietly.

"No," answered the woman. "You know it isn't. I'd rather be dead than to have to associate with women."—New York Press.

Why the Judge Paid.

A physician, says a medical journal that vouches for the truth of the story, was once summoned in haste to attend the child of a family that lived in two rooms in the heart of a large American city—not New York. The child had been seized suddenly and seriously and just at election time. The mother was in despair, and when the doubtful prognosis was given she broke into wailing and violent self condemnation for some horrible sin of the family to which she said the child's illness was due—a direct punishment for their crime. She would go and curse the magistrate for it all, her husband should resign from "the force," and such evil ways should be renounced forever.

Curious to know how the magistrate could be held responsible for the child's illness, the doctor finally secured the confession that the crime of the poor, conscience stricken woman consisted in allowing the names of many fraudulent voters to be registered as residing in her house, in swearing to the lie, etc. The magistrate also had demanded this of all the neighbors in return for indescribable political favors.

The child recovered, and the magistrate paid the physician's bill.

Carrying a Watch.

"After carrying a watch for thirty years I have just learned something new in watch lore," said the city salesman. "I don't know whether this is true or not, but an old watchmaker told me. I bought a watch of him the other day. It was a cheap watch. He said:

"'What pocket are you going to carry your watch in—the right or left?'

"I told him the left.

"'Then,' said he, 'I will regulate it for the left.'

"I asked what difference it made, and he declared that a watch runs faster on the left side than on the right, so to keep it from gaining time he regulates it accordingly. In fine watches the difference is hardly worth considering, but in watches of cheap make like mine it is very noticeable. I asked for a scientific reason for this variation. He could give none; said he only knew it was true, and then, whether he was faking or not, he pretended to regulate my watch for the left pocket."—New York Sun.

Chinaware of the Big Hotels.

The only china used at private dinners at the Knickerbocker in New York is the bleue de sevres, which was made in France especially for this hotel, with blue and gold pattern and the monogram of the hotel on the rim of each piece. There are seventy-two pieces to a set, and each piece cost $6. At the Plaza and Astor the cost of each piece is $4 and $5 respectively, and designs are white and gold and plain white with border of asters. Great care has been taken and large expense incurred in obtaining the choicest china for the Waldorf-Astoria. For select private dinners the "crown" set is used, consisting of specimens from the sets of royalty dating from the time of Napoleon to the present. The pattern is a blue and gold border with a picture in the center of each piece of the king and queen to whom that particular piece belonged. The set could not be duplicated for $1,000,000.—Good Housekeeping.

A Dangerous Subject.

Professor Henry Drummond when a boy discovered that he could hypnotize people. At a birthday party a little girl declined to play the piano. Drummond happened to catch her eye and said, "Play." To his surprise she rose at once, went to the piano and played. At another time he hypnotised a boy and gave him a poker for a gun. "Now," said Drummond, "I'm a pheasant. Shoot me." The boy did so, and Drummond fell to keep up the illusion, whereupon the boy, seeing the "bird" move, was about to hit it over the head with the poker. The hypnotizer had just time to stop the magnetised sportsman.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Woman's Smile.

"Strange what a little thing will turn the whole current of a man's life!"

"What's the matter now, Jones?"

"Up to thirty days ago the young lady of my choice was taking my attentions seriously and our marriage seemed a foregone conclusion. Then I met her on the avenue, lifted my hat, made my best bow and dropped through a coal hole. Now she can't keep her face straight a minute while we're together."—Detroit Free Press.

Trouble Ahead.

It was in an electric car coming from Streatham one day last week. The loquacious lady seemed greatly perturbed and fully prepared for the strenuous life.

"Yes, I don't usually go into town at this time of the morning," said she, "but I rang up my husband on the telephone, and I heard him tell the office boy to say that he wasn't in, and that's what I'm going into town for."—London Tatler.

Called the Deal Off.

A lad attending school craved a little holiday one morning when he started out to wrestle once again with the trials incident to getting an education. As he entered the schoolroom he hatched a plot to get the coveted holiday. He went up to the teacher's desk and told his story. "My mother wants to know if you won't excuse me for today?" he began. "She wants me to do some work at home and thought if I'd study at home this evening and make up what I'd missed mebby you'd let me off."

Something about the lad's manner kept the words from carrying conviction. The teacher bluffed back as follows: "Tommy," said she, "you won't need to go home at all. Since you started to school your mother called me on the phone to tell me that she had changed her mind and for you to stay here."

The lad looked at her, startled. "Aw, well," he said, "as long as both of us are lyin' about it let's just call it quits. I'll stay here."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Wealthy Soldier's Idea.

Australians still tell stories of the colonial volunteers, although the war is a far memory. One, a member of the Stock Exchange, was left one wet and miserable night to guard a wagon load of goods. He shivered in the unsheltered place for some hours pondering many things, and then a bright thought struck him just as the colonel came around on his tour of inspection.

"Colonel," he asked, "how much is this wagon worth?"

"I don't know," was the answer. "Much or little, we can't afford to lose it."

"Well, but, colonel," persisted the amateur soldier, "you might give me a rough idea of the value."

"About £200," said the colonel testily.

"Very well," was the answer; "I will come down to the camp and give you a check for the amount. Then I'll turn in. I wouldn't catch my death of cold for twice that much."

What the colonel said is not recorded.—Melbourne Times.

Fourteenth Century Doctors.

Synge's "Social Life in England" quotes a number of fourteenth century hints to success for physicians:

Suppose you know nothing, say there is an obstruction of the liver. Perhaps the patient will say, "Nay, master, it is my head or legs that trouble me." Repeat that it comes from the liver, and especially use the word "obstruction," for patients do not understand it, which is important.

Never dine with a patient who has not paid you. It will be cheaper to get your dinner at an inn, for such feasts are usually deducted from the surgeon's fee.

When you are treating a wound or accident, the friends of the patient should be excluded, for they may faint and cause a disturbance, but sometimes a higher fee may be got from persons present fainting and breaking their heads against wood and the like than from the principal patient.

Secret Society Among Sese Islanders.

The Sese islanders have attained a peculiar notoriety in Uganda because of a secret society called the Bachichi, which is not a burial society, although its members take a deep and intelligent interest in all deaths and burials in their midst. In the more retired villages, although greatly discouraged by the British authorities, it is said to be still the custom for the sorrowing relatives to bear the body of the deceased wrapped in bark on a rough bier to some forest thicket, desolate ravine or other unfrequented spot, where it is left unburied by the bearers, who never revisit the place again. The Bachichi, who are denizens of a neighboring village, and distant relatives of the deceased avoid the necessity of burial or cremation and show their respect for the deceased by simply eating him.—National Magazine.

A Disappointment.

"Yes," says the lady after an acquaintance of ten or fifteen years before has been renewed, "I remember you perfectly."

"Indeed?" murmurs the gratified man. "I am glad to know that."

"Yes; at one time I thought of marrying you."

"Oh," he replies dejectedly. "I thought for the moment that there might have been something that made me different from all the other men you ever knew."—Life.

A Stranger to His Ways.

A distinguished bishop of the Episcopal church, arriving late at a small town one night, found the hotel closed, and, hammering at the door for admission, a neighbor stuck his head out of an adjoining window with, "Say, stranger, knock like the devil!" to which the bishop replied, "I don't know how."

Not Too Often.

"They tell me New England is full of old maids," said the Philadelphia girl. "Now, I suppose you Boston girls don't often marry?" "No; only once, as a rule," replied the Boston girl.—Philadelphia Record.

Spots Removed While You Sleep.

A Very Restful Rest.

Adolf Menzel, the German artist, was at one time engaged on a mural decoration. He had rigged up a scaffolding in his studio, on which his model was requested to stand. For two long hours the poor poseur stood up aloft in a most fatiguing posture. Menzel in the meantime worked at his sketch, heedless of the fact that his model was growing tired.

At length the model found it necessary to speak. "Herr professor," said he, "how about a recess?"

Menzel apologized profusely for his forgetfulness. "Certainly, certainly, my dear sir," said he. "Come down and rest yourself a bit."

The model had clambered from the scaffolding to the ladder, which led down from it to the studio floor.

"Stop!" cried the artist suddenly. "That pose is fine! Don't move a muscle!"

And once more the model was forced into strained rigidity, while the enthusiastic draftsman set about sketching him.

At the end of half an hour Menzel looked up from his work. "There," said he; "that will do nicely! Get back on the scaffold. We have had our rest. Let us get back to work again."

What the model said is left to the reader's imagination.

Scotland and Horse Racing.

Scotland has been famous for its horses from the most ancient days. When Agricola defeated the Caledonians at the battle of the Grampians, A. D. 84, the Celtic enemy, as Tacitus relates, were exceptionally strong in cavalry and charioteers. Successive kings of Scotland did much to improve its native breed of horses, and in this connection it is not to be forgotten that the first Scottish king of England, James I., did more to improve the race horses in our island than was ever done before him or has ever been done by any individual since. James I. was the real author of horse racing as it has since been known in England. He it was who first established regular courses, and during his reign there came into being the code of regulations that led up to the modern laws of the turf. Nobody denies that horse racing has done much for the breed of British horses. It was a gift from Scotland.—London Answers.

Sizing Up Bernard Shaw.

Bernard Shaw is thus immortalized by Charles Hawtrey, the well known English comedian: "Once on a time I had a mad desire to produce Shaw's play of 'You Never Can Tell.' I wrote to Shaw and asked his permission. He answered that he would come and read it to me. He did and began by saying that sometimes he thought it was the best play that ever was written and at others he considered it the greatest trash. Anyhow, he was of opinion that it was a pretty poor play and that if I produced it—well, I must take the consequences. Some time afterward I asked Shaw if I could compress the last act. He declined to allow one line to be altered or cut out. In view of certain contingencies I had at last to tell him that I couldn't produce the play. His answer was: 'Thank you so much! You have taken a great load off my mind.' Now, what are you to do with a man like that?"—Minneapolis Journal.

Domestic Bliss.

They had been trotting in double harness for seven long, weary months, and the honeymoon had bumped the bumps for fair.

"John," she said, as she dished out the breakfast food, "I need a little pin money this morning."

"What did you do with the $5 I gave you last week?" asked the man who had promised to love, honor and pay the freight.

"Oh, I don't remember," she replied. "It's so easy to spend $5 and have nothing to show for it."

"Right you are," sighed John. "That was the amount I paid the minister for marrying us."—Chicago News.

Tongue Twisters.

Among brief tongue twisters the following are hard to beat: "The sun shines on the top signs;" "She says she shall sew a sheet;" "The sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick." Some of Shakespeare's lines offer pitfalls to the rapid speaker. In "Midsummer Night's Dream" we find, "When lion rough in wildest rage doth roar," and in the same play

Oh, Fates, come, come!
Cut thread and thrum;
Quell, crush, conclude and quell.
—London Chronicle.

A Corsican Vendetta.

Lecturing on "The Land of the Vendetta" at the Royal Geographical society's headquarters, the Rev. T. T. Norgate said he had discovered instances of a vendetta being started in Corsica through a pig getting into another man's field, and this had caused the loss of perhaps hundreds of lives and had made two families deadly enemies for upward of 300 years. The men who carried on such a vendetta would scorn to rob any one of a sixpenny piece.—London Globe.

She Admitted It.

"What do you ask for this plaque?" inquired an old gentleman of the pretty girl in charge of a church bazaar.

"One guinea," she replied.

"Aren't you a little dear?" queried the old gentleman.

"Well," answered the pretty girl, blushing, "that's what the boys all tell me."

An Indestructible Color.

The indestructible floral color is yellow. You cannot, even with sulphurous acid fumes, destroy it. Take a heartsease and try. You will consume the purple tint easily enough, but the yellow will remain for all your filthy fumes.—Fry's Magazine.

Remembered.

"Did your uncle remember you in his will?"

"Yes. He directed his executors to collect all the loans he had made me."—Boston Transcript.

A Light Burden.

A frail little slip of a girl with a sweet, worn face toiled up the hill under the weight of a robust infant who must have weighed nearly as much as she did.

"My dear child," exclaimed a sympathetic passerby, "you ought not to carry that big baby. Isn't he dreadfully heavy?"

"Heavy? Why, no, indeed, ma'am," she smiled. "He's my brother!"—Delineator.

Realistic.

She (at the musicale)—Miss Schreecher sings with wonderful realism. Don't you think so? He—Yes; you can almost see the crack in her voice.—Detroit Saturday Night.

A Restless Breed.

Mr. Sickham—No, sirree, money wouldn't buy that dog. He's a cross between a St. Bernard and— Mr. Peevey (who is not enthusiastic)—And a St. Vitus?—Puck.

In conversation confidence has a greater share than wit.—Rochefoucauld.

A PLEASANT EVENING.

Mr. James Newton, a Glendale boy, entertained many of his Los Angeles friends on the 30th of April, the occasion being a birthday. The evening was perfect, and Glendale was perfumed with flowers and orange blossoms. Mrs. Newton and her sons opened their homes and their hearts, so that the young people from Los Angeles were loathe to go, and many expressed the wish that their homes were as beautifully situated as are the homes of the good people of Glendale. The guests numbered about thirty.

A Marvelous Cure.

It is related that once a German American, growing more and more afflicted with extreme nervousness, got the impression that he was forgetting English. The impression got so strong that he refused to talk anything but German. Then he became convinced that he was forgetting that, closed up like an oyster and was led away to a sanitarium, where he spent his days in complete silence.

A course of treatment was prescribed for him in which baths played an important part. Every morning the dumb German American was thrown bodily into a tub filled with very hot water, allowed to remain there awhile and then hauled out and set to cool on the piazza.

But once the sanitarium acquired a new attendant who got his signals mixed. He was told to bathe the German American. Filling a tub with ice cold water, he threw the patient into it.

"You ——! You confounded ——!" roared the dumb man, beside himself with fury. "You ——!" Then he switched to German. "Du verfluchter Esel! Du ——!"

The doctors pronounced him cured, and he left the sanitarium the next day.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Domestic Hen.

Joe Jefferson used to tell this one:

"In the spring of 1892, being in the vicinity of West Swanzey, N. H., I drove over to call on my old friend, Den Thompson. It happened that I called at an inopportune time, as the women folk were housecleaning. In fact, I noticed as I drove up to the house that the clotheslines in the yard back of the house were laden with carpets.

"Den was very anxious that I should look over his prize fowls, in which he took especial pride. We went out into the big yard back of the house. As Den was pointing out to me his favorites we noticed one old hen going through some queer antics. She was pecking away at something on the ground, lifting it in her bill and dropping it again.

"'What's the matter with the old Biddy, anyway, Den?' I asked.

"Den was silent for a minute, then drawled out:

"'Well, you see, Joe, as she's a rather domestic sort of hen I cal'late the old girl must be getting ready to lay a carpet.'"—New York Telegraph.

Daintiness In Dough.

A west side family that abhors all products of the bakeshop advertised for a maid of all work.

"Can you make bread?" was the question put to each applicant.

Of all the maids who professed to own that accomplishment the mistress chose the one with the frailest hands and arms.

"I don't know about the wisdom of that choice," ventured a male member of the family. "Wouldn't it have been better to pick out a sturdier girl?"

"Not at all," said the lady. "What we require in this family, above all things, is good bread. We half live on bread. I am confident I have chosen a good breadmaker. A girl with rather delicate hands always makes better bread than one whose fists are like sledge hammers. Bread to be good needs to be coddled in the kneading. The light fingered do that instinctively, but the heavy handed slam and bang the very life out of the dough."—New York Globe.

Philosopher and Philanthropist.

"Coquelin was very charitable," said a theatrical manager. "He did more for superannuated actors and actresses than any other man in France. I once heard him speak on charity in the French Actors' home, that he did so much for.

"'There are plenty of philanthropists,' said Coquelin. 'There are plenty of philosophers—plenty, I mean, according to the definition that too many of us accept.'

"He smiled grimly.

"'Too many of us,' said Coquelin, 'define a philosopher as one who bears with resignation the cold and hunger from which his neighbor is suffering, and too many of us define a philanthropist as one who gives away other people's money.'"

A Coy Maiden.

A girl played postoffice at a party and yelled and shrieked and howled and ran behind the door and scratched the young man's face in seven places, upset a lamp, kicked over the piano stool, and when he finally kissed her on the tip of the ear she fainted dead away and said she could never look anybody in the face again. They led the bashful, modest, gentle, sobbing creature home, and the next day she ran away with a married lightning rod peddler.—Altoona (Kan.) Tribune

A Strong Reason.

"You always speak kindly to your wife?" said the prying friend.

"Always," answered Mr. Meekton. "I never think of giving Henrietta a harsh word."

"Because you believe in ruling by gentleness?"

"No. Because self preservation is the first law of nature."—Washington Star.

Military Valor.

I wonder is it because men are such cowards in heart that they admire bravery so much and place military valor so far beyond every other quality for reward and worship?—Thackeray.

No Such Good Luck.

Nervous Old Lady (for the seventh time)—Oh, captain, is there any danger—shall I be drowned? Exasperated Skipper—I'm afraid not, ma'am.—London Fun.

STILL BUILDING CHURCHES.

We notice by a recent number of the California Independent that Rev. C. R. Norton, formerly of Glendale, is still keeping up his reputation as a church builder. At Cucamonga, where he is now located, he has built a fine structure, using the natural stones from the mountains nearby, with a result which is said to be very pleasing to the eye. Mr. Norton still keeps up his interest in Glendale which is reciprocated by the large circle of his friends here.

By Rev. Henderson C. Shoemaker.

The young people's social last Friday evening in the church parlors was well attended. Music was furnished by Misses Ayers, Doyle and Hobbs and by the "Upside Down quartette." A charming and whole-hearted reception was on Monday evening tendered Rev. and Mrs. Milton S. Runkle at Guild hall. Many roses and happy faces extended welcome to the new rector and his wife and the many friends gathered there. The vestry was assisted in receiving by the incoming and retiring officers and ladies of St. Mark's Guild and Auxiliary assisted in serving fruitade and cakes. Music thoroughly enjoyable was furnished by Miss Ina Whittaker and Miss Emma Williams, piano, and Miss Eleanor Clemons, violin. Among guests most interested were the visitors from nearby places.

The conversational hour was delightfully spent and the affair was one of the prettiest held in the new hall.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Last Sunday was opening day at this church and was observed by an all-day service, a basket dinner being partaken of at noon. In the afternoon the pastors of the other local churches were present and indulged in a congratulatory service. The revival services continue to attract general interest and will be continued during May. Dedicatory services will be held on the first Sunday in June. Prof. Stout will be present next Sunday morning and will sing at all services during the day. In the afternoon he will give a sermon in song, at which he will sing a number of his most popular selections.

The local ministers of all the churches of Glendale and Tropico have decided to observe the fifth Sunday in May as Mothers' Day.

Are You Going to Build?

If you are, don't start without a Plan carefully worked out, and a complete set of specifications, fully setting forth each part of the work. A set of Plans that cost you ten or fifteen dollars, if properly drawn up will save you from fifty to two hundred dollars.

If you have plans, specifications and contracts signed and recorded you will save untold trouble, expense and annoyance. My plans are complete in every detail. The specifications cover every part of the building, leaving no room for extras.

I will write your contract, see that your bond is all right, and that all papers are properly recorded; that the work is carried out according to the plans. I look after your interest. My charges are reasonable, generally about two per cent. on the cost of the building, which includes contracts, estimates of cost, looking after the work, etc. If you are going to build you can't afford to take chances for this amount.

Sketch of any style of building submitted free of charge.

My experience in building has been very extensive, and I am thoroughly conversant with all the building laws of California.

Come in and see me, it won't cost you anything to get my ideas, even if I don't make your plans.

I am at your service.
